Why the migration speed on Shareit is slow is usually too high but sometimes users also face very low migration speeds. There are a couple of reasons why this could happen. The distance between the pair devices makes a huge impact on file transfer rates. More distance means that weak signals and weak signals ultimately mean slow data transfer rates. More and more background apps are running while file migration can also slow down the migration speed. Running at the same time affects the ram of multiple apps and slows processing speeds while eventually data transfer rates also slow down. Too many WiFi signals in the background can also slow the transfer rate. High amounts of background WiFi signals cause interruptions with data transfer and slow down speed.
